CAREER ROLE MODEL SPOTLIGHT

Lee-Marie is a Diagnostic Radiography 3rd year student at University of Gloucestershire

As a mature student I have been lucky to have gained a background of skills in communication, care quality and safeguarding through my previous career in education welfare. However it has been an eye opener going back into a world of education again and in a field that I have never ventured in before. I didn't have quite enough coverage of subjects to embark on my degree to begin with, so I completed a biology module to prepare myself for joining UoG and took up a bank role within my local trust pathology department to gain further knowledge of the local trust values and how the systems work. Something I would suggest for anyone looking to start a new venture.

My core subjects over the past 3 years have covered anatomy, physiology and pathology as well as physics and clinical imaging; allowing me to put theory into practice whilst on practical placements. Being a kinaesthetic learner, I have enjoyed my time on placement in different settings including Hereford Hospital, Cobalt Imaging Services and Thirlestaine Clinic where I have been able to complete hands on clinical imaging and have additionally found a passion within specialised practices.

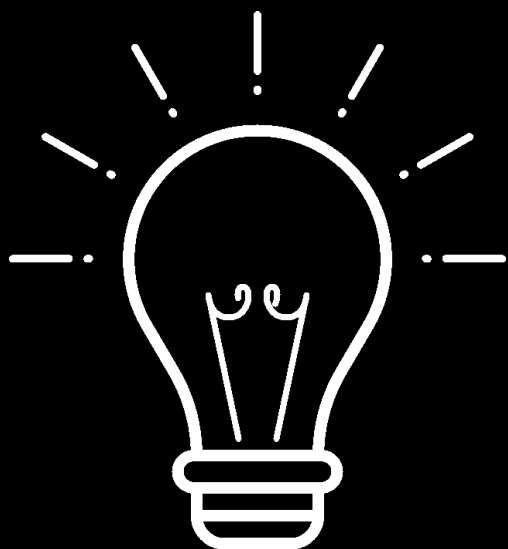

Once qualified I hope to be able to continue my portfolio and career development and specialise in the field of mammography and also link in my previous background of safeguarding.

I would say to anyone looking to try something new that its never too late to change your career if you are armed with the right skills and embrace your journey.

UNIVERSITY OF GLOUCESTERSHIRE

Diagnostic radiography is a healthcare profession that uses advanced technology to create images to help diagnose patients. After completing this programme, graduates can register with the HCPC and work as Diagnostic Radiographers.

Students in this course might be able to get the NHS Learning Support Fund, which gives a £5,000 grant each academic year that you don't need to pay back. Interested in more click here
